LONDON, June 30.—War loans are being floated in Holland for a total of one hundred and eighty million of dollars, are in process of flotation or negotiation by France, Russia and the Netherlands. The continued expenditure and extraordinary preparations of Holland, a nation at peace, excite the largest share of comment, though the actual outlay is not great, in comparison to the enormous sums disbursed by the belligerents.

An appropriation bill for one billion, one hundred and twenty millions, to cover the next ninety days of warfare, passed the French parliament yesterday. At this rate France is spending twelve and one third millions a day.

Carmay Grows Uneasy
Simultaneously the Russian ministry of finance authorized a flotation in London of twenty-five millions of short time treasury bonds, and Holland voted to issue a war loan of thirty-six million.

Dutch preparations are causing Germany considerable uneasiness. Holland has called in one class of reserves after another, until now the entire army is mobilized, and for months she has been piling up munitions, foodstuffs, and other supplies in great central depots. The northwestern German border. Large bodies of troops have been concentrated within striking distance of Berlin.

Four centers of supplies have been established for a northern army, one for an eastern army, one for a central army and one for a southern army. In addition great general supply depots have been established at Amsterdam, Leyden, Delft, Schiedam and Rotterdam.

Imports Break Records
During the last six months Holland has imported many times the amount of raw and manufactured materials she usually buys in times of peace. Preparations for something have been going on since the outbreak of the war, and there is now on hand a surplus sufficient to meet the needs of the Dutch army for a year's campaign.

Importations consist of copper, cotton, wheat, canned meats and foodstuffs, shoes, socks and woolen shirts from America; quantities of nickel from Sweden; from Canada and the United States; and ammunition from Norway, Sweden, America and even, in the early days of the war, from England.

Earthworks Thrown Up
Earthworks have been thrown up along the west bank of the Noisse from Mook to Roermond, for a distance of fifty miles and on the east bank from Roermond to Maastricht, a distance of twenty-five miles.

In Heerlen, the factories are running night and day. All Holland is a bulwark. The official explanation is that Holland is preparing to protect her neutrality against all eventualities.

AUSTRIAN RESISTANCE IN SOUTH STIFFENING

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)
ROME, June 30.—The tone of the latest official bulletin indicates that Austrian resistance to Italian aggression is stiffening. Repeatedly it mentions Austrian attacks which are said to have been repulsed.

"In the Tyrol and the Trentino," says the bulletin, "Austrian artillery has been active. An enemy attack on Monte Civron has been repulsed. Other attacks on several of our positions in the same neighborhood also were repulsed."

LONDON, June 30.—Although the authorized strength of the British navy was recently increased by fifty thousand additional officers and men, it is still far from three hundred thousand, the figure in its history. It is announced today that more volunteers have offered than the admiralty can accept.

German Envoy Finds Empire Well Disposed

Emissary of Envoy von Bernstorff Induces Teutons To Curb Their Temper

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)
BERLIN, June 30.—The report on the envoy of Ambassador von Bernstorff, published here yesterday by Dr. Anton Meyer-Greif, the confidential emissary of Ambassador von Bernstorff, has stirred notably the tone of the German press, which almost as a rule this morning supports him.

The doctor said that Germany and America now understand each other, and that while in America he had found authentic sympathy for Germany and the German cause.

"The friendship of America is a valuable possession," comments the Rechts-Zeitung, in a representative editorial, "and the German people is ready and willing to do anything in reason to maintain it."

Germany's reply to President Wilson's second Lusitania note probably will be ready for transmission either at the end of this week or early next week.

AMERICAN NAVAL POLICY OBSOLETE

Vice-President Marshall Thinks
European War Teaches That Submarines Are Strength

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)
INDIANAPOLIS, June 30.—"The American navy is today in the highest degree of efficiency in its history," declared Vice-President Marshall last night, addressing the Indiana Spanish War Veterans, assembled here.

That the time has arrived for the United States to adopt a different naval policy, however, is his opinion, expressed in his address.

If it be possible for inexpensive submarines to destroy seventy-five million dollars worth of "dreadnoughts," the people's money should not be spent on building more dreadnoughts, he said. He asked if the lesson which has been taught in the European war is not a sufficient cause for a general change in the American naval policy.

SUBMARINE RUNS AGROUND

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—The submarine H-3, on her way here from San Diego to take part in the exposition celebration of the Fourth of July, ran aground last night at Point Sur.

How she came to be off her course is not known. Her commander reports that she is in no danger, is not leaking and probably will be floated in the morning. The American-Hawaiian freighter Agona, the tender Cheyenne and the coast guard cutter McCulloch and Despatch are standing by.

JAPANESE MINISTER ACCUSED OF BRIBERY

(Special to the Hawaii Shipp.)
TOKIO, June 29.—T. Nomura, president of the Seiyukai, the strong anti-government party opposing the Okuma ministry, has been charged with bribery of the interior minister. It is alleged that the latter accepted a bribe of 10,000 yen from one T. Shirakawa, who in a recent general election, was a candidate from the Kanagawa prefecture. The case is now on trial in the Tokyo district court. It is reported that three members of the Diet, a former member of the same body, have been arrested in connection with the alleged bribery.

ENVOY OF VILLA ASKS INTERVIEW WITH PRESIDENT

General Angeles Agrees With Mr.
Wilson That Mexican Conflict Is Useless

'PANCHE' WANTS HONORABLE
MAN FOR THE PRESIDENCY

While Agent Seeks 'Way Out' In United States Bandit
General Fights

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)
WASHINGTON, June 30.—Gen. Felipe Angeles, chief of staff to Gen. Francisco Villa, the chieftain dominant in Northern Mexico, agrees with President Wilson that the present bloody, interminable conflict in his country, between factions, none of which can hope for recognition from the United States, is hopeless and useless.

As General Angeles' mission is unfolded in successive statements and in interviews, it seems to assume more diplomatic and less military significance. He asserted last night that he is on the best of terms with Villa, whose message to President Wilson he bears.

Villa Wants Capable Man
"General Angeles," he said, "will support any capable honorable man for the presidency. I hope to see President Wilson, in order that I may learn his policy at first hand and at the same time acquaint him with that of General Villa."

"I am opposed to General Huerta, both personally and to his principles." Further talk of peace is brought to Washington in advice from El Paso to the effect that José Isabel Robles, who was minister of war in the cabinet of former Provisional President Gutierrez, has opened negotiations between two large factions, which have agreed to discuss terms. He hopes to bring their representatives together in perhaps a fortnight.

President Asked For Interview
Two emissaries from General Angeles and General Raoul Madero, a brother of the murdered Mexican President, arrived at Corral, New Hampshire, yesterday, to ask permission for an interview between the President and Angeles.

General Angeles called yesterday at the state department to deny formally that he is in any way connected with the uprising which General Huerta attempted to launch, but which was snuffed by his arrest Monday at El Paso by agents of the department of justice.

Enrique Llorente, Villa's special agent, joined General Angeles yesterday in a call on General Scott, chief of staff, at the war department, to deliver a personal message from Villa. To the newspaper men they said Angeles' mission was a military one, but entered into no particulars.

Villa In Fierce Battle
Despatches last night from El Paso reported that Villa is desperately defending chosen positions south of Aguas Calientes from fierce attacks by troops loyal to General Carranza, the Constitutional First Chief. Heavy fighting for the last three days, between Monterrey and Paredon, with the result still in the balance, was also reported from Laredo, Texas.

From Tampico it was reported to the state department that General Pablo Gonzales, who was defeated last Wednesday in an attack on the 25,000 men with whom Zapata is holding Mexico City, has been superseded by General Trevano.

Carranza is massing troops around the capital and expects to occupy it, says Tampico, within two or three days. He hopes to avoid a battle in the streets of the city, but all possible measures for the protection of non-combatants and foreigners are being taken by the resident diplomatic corps.

BRITISH AGENTS ACTIVE ON COAST

Federal Officials Say They Inva-died Army and Navy To Get War Recruits

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—That agents of the British government have been working systematically in California, securing recruits for the British army, for active service in France, is the assertion of federal officials, conducting a federal grand jury investigation into the alleged conditions.

The testimony presented, say the officials, is that these agents offered enlisted men of the American army and navy a bonus of ten dollars a month over the active service pay if they would desert and accept passage for England.

Recruits secured in California and elsewhere throughout the country were physically examined for admission into the British army in New York, before those who were accepted sailed.

The British agents, declare the federal officials, worked in the army, navy and U. S. C. A. for their recruits and spent to date in California upwards of $100,000 in their work.

SHIPPING MEN WAIT NEW MARITIME LAW

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—The steamship Venice will sail for Australia July 10 carrying half a million pounds of California butter. A severe drought has cut down the Australian supply so heavily that there has even been difficulty in filling the government contracts.

RUSSIANS ASSUME STRONG DEFENSIVE

They Make Stand to Save Warsaw and Railroad Leading To Odessa

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)
London, June 30.—Having withdrawn from their positions on the Dniester along a two hundred and fifty mile front, the Russians are now strong on the defensive in new positions along the Bug River, according to the official reports from Petrograd. Should this line be forced, the last Russian hold upon Galicia will have to be abandoned and the entire Russian army will be back within its own borders.

The Russian line in Galicia now extends from the junction of the Dniester and the Galitsia in southeast Galicia, to the Polish border east of Lemberg, against which the columns of the Austro-Germans are operating.

The Austro-German objective in the great drive, believe the military critics here, is either the capture of Warsaw or the seizing of the railroad running from Lemberg to Odessa, on the Black Sea, the control of which has would prevent any supplies reaching the Russian front by direct line in the event of the early forcing of the Dniester.

Petrograd advises in line to the belief that Von Linsingen's real objective is this railroad line and that the movement against Warsaw is in the nature of an elaborate feint.

Warnings have been sent from Russia that the seizure of this railroad or the capture of Warsaw will mean a early general German offensive in the west.

Teutons Cross Polish Border
An official despatch from Vienna yesterday announced that the Teutons had crossed the Polish border and occupied the important town of Tarnobrzeg, a railroad junction forty miles northwest of Lemberg, while a strong Russian force which had made a stand near Kamionka, on the Bug River, twenty-five miles northwest of Lemberg, had been driven back towards the Polish border, with heavy losses.

Mrs. Norma Adams, a dainty figure in pink, was matron of honor, while Mr. August Bode, Jr., acted as best man.

SCHOONER LOADED WITH RIFLES AND 'DUMDUMS' IS SEIZED

Annie Larsen, Carrying 4000 Old Springfield and 1,000,000 Cartridges, Puts Into Haven
In Distress—Clears Up To Some Extent
Mystery At Hilo of the Steamer Maverick

(ASSOCIATED PRESS BY FEDERAL WIRELESS.)

HONOLULU, Washington, June 30.—With 4000 old Springfield rifles and 1,000,000 dum dum cartridges in her hold, the schooner Annie Larsen arrived here yesterday in distress, without water and without provisions. She was seized by the authorities.

She was to have delivered the arms and ammunition to the old Standard Oil tank steamer Maverick, whose presence at Hilo, Hawaii, recently aroused suspicion.

Her cargo originated in Kansas City, Missouri and was shipped to New York and thence to San Diego. The Annie Larsen cleared San Diego for Topolobampo, Mexico, but it is believed that her cargo was intended for European belligerents.

When the Annie Larsen left San Diego the captain was instructed that a supercargo would be aboard and that he would receive his orders at sea.

Cargo For Steamer Maverick
The cargo was to have been transferred to the Maverick at the Socorro Islands, 800 miles from the coast of Mexico, but the Annie Larsen missed the Maverick, and sailed for Acapulco, where the supporters of General Carranza attempted to seize her, but she cleared with the assistance of the United States gunboat Yorktown.

The Maverick was under charter to Frederick A. Jensen of San Francisco, a well known shipping man.

Story of Maverick Oiler Is Confirmed

This despatch confirms to a remarkable degree the story told The Advertiser by Jose Camaliche, an oiler on the Maverick, who left the ship at Hilo because of illness and who was treated at the Queen's Hospital here. Camaliche's story, when told, seemed so fantastic that it was almost incredible, but it is evident now that it was strictly within the truth.

Last Wednesday The Advertiser printed Camaliche's story, in which he told of the Maverick leaving San Pedro on April 22 with a crew recruited in San Francisco for Mexico, and then sailing for "Socorro," as it appeared from Camaliche's pronunciation, but which meant the Socorro Islands, according to the Associated Press report.

His story of the Maverick waiting there twenty-five days for the schooner that did not come now is proved to mean the wait for the Annie Larsen, which, the despatch says, missed the Maverick. The Maverick then sailed for Guadalupe and Coronado, Captain Nelson going ashore at San Diego. After that the Maverick sailed for Hilo, arriving on June 11, and sailing on June 31 for Angier, Java, not having found the Annie Larsen at all. Except for the five men on the Maverick, who, Camaliche said, wore "rugs" on their heads and were generals with "things on their shoulders," Camaliche's story has been borne out. Something may come to light to explain the five men who Camaliche thought were Hindus.

Waited For Annie Larsen
His story of the Maverick waiting there twenty-five days for the schooner that did not come now is proved to mean the wait for the Annie Larsen, which, the despatch says, missed the Maverick. The Maverick then sailed for Guadalupe and Coronado, Captain Nelson going ashore at San Diego. After that the Maverick sailed for Hilo, arriving on June 11, and sailing on June 31 for Angier, Java, not having found the Annie Larsen at all. Something may come to light to explain the five men who Camaliche thought were Hindus.

Cargo Arouses Interest
The shipment of arms and ammunition to the Annie Larsen at San Diego in February aroused great interest there at that time. The customs authorities and the United States secret service investigated the shipment, which came by rail from New York, as there was talk of holding the schooner, but, eventually, she was permitted to load the supplies. When the ammunition reached San Diego, there even was uncertainty as to who was the consignee.

Then she lay in San Diego for a long time, no one, seemingly, knowing why. It was taken for granted in San Diego then that the arms were for Carranza's use in his reported plans to invade Lower California, and, in fact, there was a well-founded report that a Villa gunboat was lying off the Coronado Islands, south of San Diego, in wait for the schooner should she venture out, a Carranza gunboat also flaring in the rumors.

Carranzistas Attempted To Seize
For this reason, those who were in touch with the situation in San Diego at that time believed that the ammunition really was for Carranza, yet there is the fact that the Carranza forces attempted to seize her, as reported by the Associated Press, and that she was freed by the Yorktown at Acapulco. This, added to the evident truth that the ammunition was ready to Carranza's hand if it was for him, and that there would be no reason for loading it on the Maverick if it was for Mexico, certainly gives color to the despatch from Hoquiam that the munitions were believed to be for a European belligerent. Yet such small supplies and few rifles, old, at that, at such a distance from the seat of war, could be of little conceivable use on the Continent of Europe, so that it would appear that they were to be put to some end in the Pacific, perhaps for a European power.

Has Wandered About Sea
The Annie Larsen sailed from San Francisco on January 24 for San Diego. She arrived at San Diego on February 3 and sailed on March 8 for Acapulco, and from Acapulco on April 26 for Topolobampo. Presumably she has been wandering about the sea since. The Maverick left San Pedro, according to Camaliche, on April 22, while the Annie Larsen was lying at Acapulco. Her commander is given as Captain Isackson in the latest New York Maritime Register.

Jensen was the owner of the steamer Mazatlan, which was transferred to the German flag from the Mexican when troubles in Mexico became acute. This steamer left San Francisco for Guaymas with a cargo of coal, having even keels and sacks of coal on deck. This was early in 1915. She experienced difficulty in clearing, because her mission was suspected, but eventually she did get away, and it was established that she had supplied this coal to another vessel, which, in turn, had given it to German ships. Thus the Mazatlan evaded the laws. She sailed from San Francisco on another mysterious mission later. On this voyage, secret service agents were on the ship and they obtained photographs of certain interesting occurrences. It was supposed at the time she was engaged in some filibustering work for one of the Mexican factions.

Jensen Mysterious Operator
These things are of interest only because of Jensen's connection with the Maverick, as showing the range of his activities. It will be observed that he was connected with both German and Mexican movements, in one way and another, so that his dealing with the Maverick might have been for either, if there is anything in precedent. It is also interesting that reports had reached Honolulu, and were current on the waterfront yesterday that Jensen had control of the Maverick, although the local rumor is that he owned her, having bought her from the Standard Oil Company through a third party last fall. This report was abroad here before the above Associated Press despatch came last night.

First Authentic Information
Camaliche's story, as given in The Advertiser of June 23, was the first authentic explanation of the Maverick printed in Honolulu. Wild though it seemed at the time, it has been borne out admirably. Camaliche made no attempt to reconcile the many things he did not understand, and no attempt was made by The Advertiser to reconcile them. The facts as given by Camaliche and only those facts were printed. Now authoritative advice from Hoquiam reconcile the points that were hard to understand, save only the five "Hindus" aboard the ship.

There are, of course, the biggest problems of all awaiting solution: For whom were the arms and for what purpose has the Maverick sailed for Java.
